MONDAY, July 12, 1773.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Andover, qualify'd for Voting as the Law directs, on Monday the first of June, 1773—met on Adjournment :—Col. James Frye, being Moderator of said Meeting, the Committee who were chosen by the Town the 17th of May to form Instructions for their Representative, Reported as follows.

To Mr. MOODY BRIDGES, Representative for the Town of Andover.

SIR,

WE cannot but be possess'd with thoughts pregnant with the deepest sorrow, when on every side we behold the most bold Invasions made upon our civil rights: Resentment against the daring invader, and distress of mind, for the wound liberty has already receiv'd, alternately perplex our anxious hearts;—That liberty which we cannot view, but it points us to the dangerous method by which it was purchased—How many of our distant relations led on by an insatiable thirst for liberty, freely exchang'd the crimson stream of life for her, and strictly enjoy'd it upon posterity, to esteem them as inseperable companions? And now by adhering thereto they have produc'd ferments and contention:—But should our rulers for that reason be left to do what they please without controul? If a man's house is attack'd, he has certainly a right to alarm the neighbourhood; and if any bad consequences should ensue upon it is he to be blam'd for them? But to whom must the excess of this warmth and resentment be imputed? To those who found themselves under an unhappy necessity of standing up couragiously in their own defence; or to him who reduced them to that disagreeable necessity? Who may most properly be said to inflame the minds of the people—those who opposed an unnatural scheme, which they justly apprehended to be big with their own destruction; or he who projected and persisted in it 'till it created tumult that threaten'd the peace and tranquility of the province? Therefore we advise you sir, to oppose, not with an indifferent coolness, but with an unremitted resentment every thing that threatens the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of our liberties:—We already see the subject depriv'd of his essential right to a tryal by juries;—His house and business expos'd to a parcel of low-liv'd officers under the absolute direction of the crown;—and our civil magistrates dependant on the same for their support;—We have seen a native of this province invested with a power resembling that of a Spanish inquisitor;—to be condemn'd to dig half starv'd and chill'd in mines where hope or daylight never visit the poor wretches, could not inspire a true Englishman with more resentment and detestation, than this newly invented and alarming tribunal in a sister province.

For all that is dear in nature defend us, and not only us, but our domesticks that are possess'd of the least degree of feeling from such an inquisition. To you we present our tender offspring—upon you their as well as our own happiness or misery depend in part, for which you will in future ages receive their unbounded gratitude, or most bitter and exasperated imprecations.

We farther enjoin you to return our sincere thanks to the town of Boston, for their unwearied exertions in the cause of liberty; inform them that altho' we did not answer their letter formerly, yet we received it thankfully, perus'd it, and united in sentiment with it.

The question being put, whether the above report be accepted? it passed in the affirmative.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

WHEN a man discovers benevolence & compassion by endeavouring to defend the reputation of his friend, it is painful to persons of sensibility to observe that his capacity is unequal to the task which his Humanity prompts him to undertake—This seems to be the case with honest Philalethes. In his remarks in Draper's paper of July 1, he observes, " the fence is broke, and we are all liable to have our most private communications betrayed by false friends or unprincipled enemies ; and where is the cautious Wretch, who is so invariably on his guard, as never to have said or written to a friend, what he would be unwilling to have published to the world ?"

By this it appears that Mr. Philalethes reckons himself and friends among the number of wretches—Yet if any should take the liberty from his authority to call them so, he would 'tis probable complain that he and they had been ill treated—It may perhaps be an amusement after Mr. Philalethes has gone through with his long remarks, to enumerate the contradictions in his performances.

ANNAPOLIS, (Maryland) June 17.

On Thursday and Friday last, the Weather was remarkably cold for the season ; in several parts of Baltimore & Frederick counties, particularly the latter, there was a considerable fall of snow succeeded by a smart frost, which has greatly damaged the corn and tobacco.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.

The worthy body of Revenue Commissioners at Boston, being always willing to spread their blessings, by distributing their Worthies along this Continent, have sent, as an uncommissioned Pensioner, the infamous Ebenezer Richardson, who arrived here last week. Lest all our readers may not immediately recollect the exploits of this son of Murder, we would just remind them that by the different accounts published from time to time, we find he was a fellow of the lowest class, who got a livelihood in Boston by INFORMING, and other scandalous practices till the year 1770, when being known, (between 10 & 11 o'Clock) one Day his house was surrounded and he hooted at by a parcel of boys, on which thirsting for Blood, he fired into the midst of them, and deprived a tender parent of a darling son, for this he was taken up, confined, tried by his country, found guilty, though he did not receive sentence of Death for the Murder of young Snedier, yet it was hanging over him, till thro' the mediation of the humane friends to Government, as they stile themselves, he was pardoned, skulked out of Goal, and is now basking in the genial Rays of those kind Gentlemen who are ever ready to take by the hand, every Villain who has or will lend a hand to deprive an American of Liberty or Life. Certainly no person in this city will be so imprudent as to harbour in his house this Murderer.

About twelve years ago, Thomas England, of this city tallow chandler, was suddenly missing, but afterwards found floating in the river, and from many circumstances, it was generally thought that he had made away with himself ;—but a few days ago a letter was received by our Governor from Virginia, informing him, that a person had delivered himself up, and says that he having some words with the said England, on one of the wharves, struck him with a stick, which killed him, and then to hide the murder, he threw his body into the river ; and that he has been wandering ever since a vagabond, continually tormented by his guilty conscience.

We hear from Egg Harbour, New-Jersey, that on Saturday the 19th inst. as Mr. Joseph Grant of that place was fishing, he saw a schooner run ashore near the mouth of the Inlet, on which he put off to her assistance, where he found only a boy, about 15 years of age, who said his name was Peter Brown ; that the schooner was called the Industry, that the master of her was named James Grant, who, while at the helm the day before, was knocked overboard by the boom, and was drowned, and that they were bound to New-York from North-Carolina ; that as soon as his master was knocked over, he took the helm, and making the land soon after, stood for it, when luckily he ran her ashore as above—The schooner, which is about 25 feet keel, is since got off, and lays safe in Little Egg Harbour Inlet.—On searching the vessel, they found that she had on board furs, cloaths, laces and myrtle wax, cash and bills to the amount of 7 or 800l which all lay safe in the hands of the above Joseph Grant.

NEW-YORK, July 1.

On Sunday last was brought to Town and committed to our Goal, Francis Personel alias Parsells, who stands charged with the Murder of Robert White, Esq; by coming behind him in the Night Time as he was walking the Street, near St. Paul's Church, about six Weeks ago, and knocking him down with a Club, said to be the Bar of a Door, by which his Scull was fractured in many Places and he remained speechless and deprived of his Senses 'till his Death, which happened some Days after.

July 5. Last Monday Morning a little before Sun Rise a smart Shock of an Earthquake was felt at Newtown, Jamaica, and Foster's Meadows, on Long-Island.

NEW-HAVEN, July 2.

Last Tuesday, in the Afternoon, we had a fine Shower of Rain, attended with considerable Thunder, Lightning, and Wind. At Amity, (a Parish belonging to this Town) the Wind was very violent, and we are told, has done much damage, by blowing down Trees, Fences, &c. and where the Lightning kill'd a Yoke of Oxen, belonging to one Mr. Pudden of Milford.

NEW-LONDON, July 7.

A Number of Persons in the North Parish of this Town, were this Week taken down with the Small Pox.

NEWPORT,

July 5. It is with pleasure we assure the public, from good intelligence, that the Arithusa frigate, Capt. Hammond, who sailed from this place for Halifax in May, did not speak with any vessel on this coast, nor till he arrived off Cape-Sable on the coast of Nova-Scotia ; that he did not press a single hand on his passage ; and that the account of his pressing a number of men out of a schooner bound on a fishing voyage, &c. as published in this paper of the 24th of May, was a great mistake, or misrepresentation, designed to reproach the character of Capt. Hammond, who behaved, while here, in an unexceptionable and gentlemen like manner.

Yesterday, between 12 and one o'clock, afternoon, a fire was discovered to be breaking out in one of the houses at Fort-George, occasioned by a defect in the chimney, but by the vigorous exertions of the people at the Fort, and immediate assistance which went from the town, it was soon extinguished, without having done much damage.

SALEM, June 29.

By Capt. Josiah Orne, who arrived here last Saturday from Charlestown, South Carolina, we have Advice, that the Orphan-House Academy at Savannah, in Georgia, was burnt down on Sunday Evening, the 30th ult. occasioned by Lightning. The Fire spread with such amazing Rapidity and Swiftness that very little of the Household Furniture or the Books in the Library were saved.—The two new Wings and other Buildings were providentially preserved. It was said the Academy was to be rebuilt as soon as possible with Brick.

SALEM, July 6.

Last Tuesday, in the Afternoon, several Clouds arose directly over this Place, highly charged with the electric Fluid, and produced very severe Flashes of Lightning, attended with most tremendous Peals of Thunder. The effects were afterwards seen in 8 or 9 different Places within the Limits of the Town, viz. A Brig and a Schooner, laying off in the Harbour at Anchor, and a Sloop at one of the Wharves, had their masts shivered ; a Warehouse on Capt. Derby's Wharf was struck ; and at the upper Part of the Town, a large Elm Tree was also struck, and a Cow killed ; the Effects of this surprizing Element were also seen in 2 or 3 Places in South Fields.

BOSTON, July 12.

THO. HUTCHINSON in the first of his printed letters dated June 18, 1768, (1) evidently designed to procure an armed force to put the revenue laws in execution : For after giving an account of the opposition made to the Crown officers, and artfully insinuating that it was done under the influence of " Mr. Hancock, a representative for Boston," he tells his correspondent that the Commissioners were " destitute of protection" (2) Then he endeavours to shew the inactivity of the government, by asserting contrary to notorious truth, that " no notice was taken of the extravigance of the mob by any in authority except the Governor." (3) Then he goes on to insinuate that the council connived at the mob, " calling it a brush or small disturbance." (4)—Next he goes on to speak of the " resentment that must be shown by the Nation at this inactivity and connivance of the government here. (5) He falsly represents the town of Boston as countenancing the riot, and concludes " it is not possible that this anarchy should last always."—(6)

Is it not plainly held up in this letter, (7) that the province was in a disorder'd state ; that the government so far from inclining to suppress the disorders, connived at and countenanced them, that in consequence hereof the officers of the crown were " oblig'd to quit the place of their residence," and seek protection " on board a king's ship" (8) that without other aid than what this government would or could afford, it was impossible that the king's authority should be supported—that this must be resented in England, and when HALLOWELL should arrive there, who went fraught with letters from him and the board of commissioners and, others, and to whom Mr. Hutchinson refers (9) for a more full account of his opinion, it would be impossible but that measures would be taken as should effectually put an end to this " anarchy?" (10)

In about two months from the date of this letter Hallowell arrived in London, and soon after that, orders were given by the Lords of the Admiralty for providing transports to bring the 64th and 65th regiments from Ireland to this place, of which Capt. Smith who then had the command of the ships in this harbour had due notice, as appears by his printed letter (11) dated Boston the 26th of October ; and in November following a part of those transports arriv'd here. (12) Yet we are told with an air of assurance in the Court Gazette, that it is impossible this letter could, in point of time, have the least influence towards the sending of troops. (13)

Wednesday last Capt. Hooper arrived here in 51 Days from Falmouth : The London Papers which he brought were to the 12th of May, but putting into Salem, he sent them ashore for the Printer there.—He informs that the Papers contain Accounts of the French King laying at the Point of Death, and it was reported before he came away that he was dead.—When off Scilly he saw the side of a Ship which had Port-Holes, supposed some Man of War had been wrecked :—In Latt. 55, Long. 33, several Leagues to the Westward of the Grand-Banks, he passed by a large Island of Ice of great Extent, and above 300 Feet high.

Capt. Basson arrived at Philadelphia from Lisbon, on the 4th of June in Latt. 28, Long. 52, spoke a Sloop from Boston to Barbadoes, out 18 Days, who had met with a hard Gale of Wind, and had lost all his Horses and Cattle off the Deck.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Philadelphia, to his Correspondent in Boston, the 26th ult.

"THE Minds of our People are anxiously turn'd to the State of Things with you. Mr. Hutchinson was held in esteem, as a Gentleman of Honor and Principle : Even with regard to the contradictory disrespect Assertions in his History, and his late Letters to the General Court, or Assembly, respecting your Constitution, some among us endeavoured to salve it over : But wear the Masque of Friendship, and avail himself of the Disguise, to the subverting, or endeavouring to subvert the Constitution of his Country, is a Circumstance which his Children's Children will not be able to forget !

" I am much pleased that the attention of some of your Town is turned to the miserable State of the Africans, whom we hold as Slaves among us. It is a standing Reproach. I would it were held in general Abhorrence" ! !——

Extract from a late Dublin News-Paper.

" Last Tuesday in the Morning, Mr. Wynne near this City was found dead in his Field near his own House almost senseless, with several Marks of Violence upon him, in which Condition he continued 'till last Saturday se'nnight and then died without ever having been able to declare any Particulars.—The Coroners Inquest brought in the Verdict Wilful Murder against Persons unknown.

Saturday last about 3 o'Clock, we had a sudden and very violent Squall or Gust of Wind, which overset a Boat below, containing 4 Persons, whereby a young Lad about 16 Years of Age, named Maines, was drowned.—This Lad's Mother was buried last Monday Afternoon.

Last Thursday Morning the Body of Mr. Thomas Jackson was taken up in Charles River : It is supposed he had been drowned several Days.

Yesterday died, after a short Illness, Mr. Benjamin Bagnall, Ætat. 84, one of the People called Quakers. He came from England to America in early Life, and has long resided in this Place. He was a good Husband and a tender Parent,—Honest and upright in his Dealings, sincere and stedfast in his Friendships, liberal to the Poor, and a good Citizen : He acquired the Regard and Esteem of those who had the Pleasure of his Acquaintance. His Funeral is to be attended To-Morrow at Six o'Clock.

Last Saturday se'nnight, as Mr. Abraham Sherman of Dartmouth, was crossing Cushonet-river, in a boat, with another man and a boy, he fell overboard and was drowned ; his body was taken up about an hour after. This is the seventh Person drowned in said river in about 12 months.—He has left many children, and a disconsolate widow, who has had the misfortune to lose one husband before this in the same way.

On Monday the 22d ult. died at Weathersfield, in Connecticut, very suddenly, Mrs. Elizabeth Treat, Wife of Mr. —— Treat, formerly the noted Elizabeth Canning, whose case made a great noise in England about 20 years ago, when she was arraigned for wilful and corrupt perjury ; her trial lasted 7 days, and is contained in near 300 folio pages of the state trials vol. 10. She was found guilty, but though recommended to mercy, at the instigation of that excellent citizen, Sir John Barnard, and that her sentence might be only six months imprisonment, she was transported at the request of her friends, in August 1754, and has lived ever since in New-England.

On the 18th of June last, a very sorrowful Accident happened at Marlborough, as a Number of Men were Fishing in a River with a Sein, two of them were unfortunately drowned, viz. Mr. Aaron Barnes in the 29th Year of his Age, and Mr. Will^m Barnes, in the 21st Year of his Age, they have left two sorrowful Widows to lament their Loss.

ON the unfortunate Death of the agreeable Mr. JOHN PADDOCK. (Student at Harvard College) who was drowned July 8, 1773.

"Hopeful Youth!" so spake each palsied Tongue,
"And the big Tear of generous Grief stole down
Each pale Cheek, when th' unwelcome Tale was told
To Harvard's Sons;—but when they came and saw
The beauteous Corse inanimate, and strove
In vain to call young Acis back to Life.
Ah, how they look'd, and weeping turn'd their Heads,
Quaking with mighty Horror at the Thought!——
"Ah hapless Youth! We knew not how we loved him"!
O could I paint a Father's wringing Grief,
A Mother's bitter Anguish,——Brother's Tears——
Then might I paint th' excruciating Look
Of Pity's melting Eye, in every Front,
And kind Impatience for reviving Hopes——
Ah gentle Youth! how died'st thou! then no kind,
Fond Father's friendly Arm was nigh to help!
No tender Mother, weeping, clos'd thy Eyes!
No loving Brother round thy Death-bed hung!
No Sister fair, thy decent Limbs compos'd!
No last Farewell! no last Embrace! no Pray'r
But one short "Lord have Mercy," closed the Scene!
If blooming Youth, if young Simplicity
Which ever grac'd thy chearful, polish'd Brow,
If Modesty engaging, generous Worth,
A Soul where tenderest Sensibility
With winning Mildness, Angel Innocence
Where Honor, Sense and manly Wit were join'd——
If o'ergrown Virtue far beyond thy Years
Could aught avail (and mortal Man might judge)
Thou hadst not seen thy native Heav'n these many Years.
O may my Life, like thine, be free from Guilt,
My Manners pure bespeak the honest Soul;
Then if my God shall sudden snatch me hence,
I'll mount to Heav'n, and there I'll help thee sing
Triumphant Hallelujahs without End.

CANTABRIGIENSIS.

Altho' the Method of recovering Persons that have been drowned has proved ineffectual in many Cases, yet that People may not be discouraged from attempting when Occasion requires, we shall insert the following Remarks and Rules extracted from Dr. TISSOT.

"I Take it for granted, that it is not the quantity of water that is taken down by drowning Persons that is the cause of their death.

2. "Because no greater quantity has ever been found in a drowned Body than has been drank at one time without any inconveniency.

3. "Because it is difficult if possible for the least quantity of water to descend, especially into the Lungs, when once the breath is stopped by being under water: All therefore we can suppose descends into the Lungs is some small quantity which is taken by the involuntary efforts to breath after the person is under water, this small quantity may be blended with the air in the lungs and form a viscid kind of froth, which overload the lungs and brings on a suffocation; and sometimes intercepts the Blood returning from the Head so as to overcharge the brain and to bring on an Apoplexy: when this is the case all efforts to revive the respiration of the lungs or the circulation of the blood will be ineffectual—But as this is not always and I believe not often the case, and never can be ascertained but by experiment and the event. Humanity and religion require us to use the most seasonable, and effectual means to recover those who may be the unhappy sufferers by drowning.

"The following rules of practice is recommended by the best authority and the most surprising success.

1. "As soon as the drowned person is taken out of the water let his wet cloaths immediately be taken off, and his body and limbs strongly rubbed with a coarse dry linnen cloth or warm flanel, and let him be put as soon as possible into a well heated bed, and continue the rubbing after he is in bed.

2. "Let the jugular or great vein of the neck be opened and ten or twelve ounces of blood taken away.

3. "Let some strong and healthy person force his own warm breath into the patient's lungs—this may be done before and repeated while the vein is open and after it is closed.

4. "Let some tobacco-smoke or other stimulating vapour be thrown up by an inverted pipe well litt into the intestines, or in the manner of a glister.

5. "Let strong volatiles be applied to the patient's Nostrils, or well dryed tobacco blown up into his Nose.

6. "As soon as there are any signs of life, then, but not till then, give the patient, within the space of an hour 5 or 6 spoonfuls of hot tea made of carduus benedectus, or of sage or camomile flowers, sweetened with honey.

7. "The patient must not be neglected as soon as he seems to be recovered from his suffocation, but special care must be taken to disengage the lungs—and that the vessels may recover their tone.

"The above method has proved successful with persons who when they were taken out of the water were past all human hopes.—The burying persons in hot ashes, salt, sand, or in a hot dung-hill has wrought wonders.—See Doctr. Tissot's Adv. vol 2. p. 40. But these are not so easy nor more effectual than a hot bed with the rubbing with coarse cloths as above—where the drowned person has not been more than 4 hours under water.
